About Halal Meat

We serve Halal meat. It is known to be of better quality than meat from animals reared on the factory farms. Halal animals cannot be treated with antibiotics or growth hormones. The slaughtering process is quite unique. Additionally, halal meat is considered healthier though a bit more expensive.

Halal meat is meat that has been slaughtered according to Islamic law. It requires that an animal's throat be slit swiftly with a sharp blade to ensure as little pain and suffering as possible. The person with the blade says a prayer to bless the animal and give thanks for the food. It's a very specific way of killing animals for food. It involves draining all the blood completely (a more sanitary practice) and ensuring that no live animal ever see the knife sharpening or while another animal is being slaughtered.
